

British and American English

Spelling differences

British English

~~anemia~~
diarrhea
encyclo~~p~~edia

⁺
Burnt
dreamt
leapt

ence
~~defence~~
~~offence~~
~~licence~~

ill cancelled
jeweller navvellers

ise
appetiser
familiaise
organise

L
enrol
fulfil Skillful

ogue
analogue
monologue
catalogue

ou
colour
behaviour
mould

American English

^e
anemia
diarrhea
encyclo~~p~~edia

^{ed}
Burned
dreamed
leaped

ence
defense
offense
license

el
cancelled
jeweler
navvellers

ise
appetizer
familiarize
organize

L
enroll
fulfill Skillful

og
analogy
monology
catalog

o
color
behavior
mold

the metric
kiloe
centre

type

British
houses

flat

(the front of car) Bonnet
(the back of the car) boot

lorry
university

holiday

. crisp

chips

trainers

fizzy drink

post

trunk

chemist

shop

football

the
meter
kilo
center
tire

Vocabulary differences American

trunks
apartment

food

trunk

truck

college
vacation

chips

French fries

meatballs

soda

email

car

drug store

store

acres

(2)

Grammar differences

(3)

In American English, collective nouns are ^{considered} singular (The band is playing). In contrast, collective nouns can be either singular or plural in British English, although plural form is most often used (The band are playing)

(2) The British are more likely to use formal speech such as 'shall', 'would', 'will' or 'should', whereas Americans favour informal

(3) Americans continue to use gotten as the past participle of get whereas the British have long interest in 'got'.

(4) Needn't article is commonly used in British English is rarely used in American English. Americans 'may' 'don't need to'.

(5) In British English, 'at' is the preposition in relation to time and place. In American English on is used for time and in for place.

There are ^{myriad} ~~innumerable~~ differences in the way English is spoken in two countries.